LEADERSHIP WORKSHOPS-

WEEKLY LESSONS ON LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

Examples Of Good Leaders:

What Makes Them Good Leaders:

Session Three: Leader V. Boss Activity Prompts

1. Lillian tries to get her friends to be quiet by sitting quietly herself.
2. Marcos tries to be a leader by taking down the chairs in the classroom each morning.
3. Jamison told his friend to throw his trash away, but Jamison left his trash on the table.
4. Brandon helped Ryan with his math by helping Ryan figure it out on his own instead of giving him the answers.
5. Kaylie told on Aleah because Aleah was talking.
6. Mila blamed someone else for her mistake.
7. Cameron wouldn't listen to anyone else's ideas about the class project.
8. Shea demanded that David listen to her because she is older than David.
9. Emily asked for ideas from her friends about what the rules should be for kickball at recess.
10. Noah stayed in from recess to help a younger student with reading.
11. Leo started telling his classmates what to do without getting permission from the teacher.
12. Nyla asked her friend if she could help him.

Session Six: I Can Be A Good Leader

Objective:

- Students will consider practical ways that they can be a leader in their schools, homes and communities.

Materials

- Scissors
- Writing Utensils
- Foldable instructions from page 26
- "I Can Be A Good Leader" foldable from page 27

Pre-Activity Discussion:

- Who can remember what we talked about last week?
- We have been talking about what makes a good leader. Today, we are going to talk about specific ways that we can be better leaders in our classroom, homes and communities.
- What are some ways that you can be a better leader in the classroom or at school? Why is this important?
- What are some ways that you can be a better leader at home? Why is this important?
- What are some ways that you can be a better leader in the community? Why is this important?
- Today we are going to make a foldable to help us set goals for ourselves and think about how we can use the skills from this group in our lives.
