- The Annual Young Authors Writing Contest Awards Ceremony will be held on Wednesday, March 11, 2009 (snow dates: March 19th & March 25th) in the Board Room at the A.A. Roberty Building on Hickory Ave in Bel Air and on Saturday, March 14th (snow dates: March 20th & 27th) at Barnes & Noble in Bel Air. The celebration on March 11th at the Board Meeting will be in two sessions, 4:00 - 5:30 p.m. for grades six through 12 and 6:00 - 7:30 p.m. for pre-k through fifth grade. The distinguished honor as a winning author is quite an accomplishment for the 79 Harford County authors and poets. Hundreds of writing pieces were submitted and only three were selected from each grade level for each category. At this time, students will receive certificates and be honored by the Harford County Reading Council's Young Authors Writing Committee. On Saturday, March 11th, part two of the celebration sponsored by Barnes & Noble in Bel Air, will be a large gala event for all of the authors who entered as well as the winners. NEW!

- Intent to Rename Campus Hills/Schucks Road Elementary Announced - According to Board policy, the official announcement of the intent to rename the elementary school that is being constructed off of Schucks Road, near Churchville, was made at the Board meeting held Tuesday, January 20. The school was originally approved to be named Campus Hills Elementary School by the Board on Monday, December 8, 2008. The motion to rename the building was brought forth by Board member Robin Rich, who suggested the facility be named after the late Dr. Jacqueline C. Haas, HCPS superintendent of schools from 1999 - 2008. Board policy suggests that the name of a public school facility should "give proper recognition to the community which it serves," but also provides for a building/ground to be named for a person, living or dead, who has made "significant contributions to education in the Harford County Public Schools." The policy further requires the intent to name be widely publicized in the community with an invitation for the public to submit names in writing or in person during Board meetings in the 60-day interim between announcing the intent to name and action being taken. The Superintendent will provide the Board with a complete list of names suggested along with her recommendation at the Monday, March 9th Board meeting. Allowing for 60-days required prior to naming the building, the Board will take action at its March 23, 2009 business meeting (6:30 p.m.), HCPS/A.A. Roberty Building). Click here to submit a suggestion to rename the school.
